Congress stubs along at a moderate pace with a pretty strong indication that it won't tire out as soon as has been predicted. During the last few days matters of a little more rateresting and sensational character have been coming notonous, from a political standpoint at threatens to shortly occur. Mr. Acklen, of Louisiana, stands accused of a seri-ons breach of honor among members, in presenting to the House what he represented to be the report of a commit-tge, and asking to have it received and printed. These things are always accepted on the word of a member, and when it was discovered that the paper presented was not a committee report and that Mr. Arklen had no authority vhatever to so represent It, there was great Indignation. An investigation was ordered and the result reported places Mr. Acklen in a very bad situa- Eddor Herald; tion. He is a Democrat, but nearly every themocratic member believes be should be expelled, while on the Republican side he has several very active friends who favor milder freatment. Mr. Acklen's eareer has been a little cheekered since his election to Congress, and he has been arensed of some nnmanly things both here and at home, in consequence of which some newspapers have dubbed him the "Louisiana Goat," yet he has generally manuged to White-wash hlmself. It is not known whether he had any corrupt motive. In the matter now pending, and an investiga-tion luta that feature of the case is being made by the Judiciary Committee. If any bad motive is found, he will certainly be expelled. The contested election cases that have occupied the most attention so far are Curtin vs. Younn in Pennsylvania and Curtin vs. Yochin in Pennsylvania and Donnelly vs. Washburn in Minnesota. Both are practically decided. The Radical press is unking a terrible howl over the tinding of the sub-committee in the latter case, because they say Washburn's majority was 3,000. But when the report of the full committee is made, I think it will sonvince all fairminded monther its not partises and minded men that it is not partism and that the sitting member secured all his apparent majority by means which give him no legal or just claim to the seal.
